The Editorial Board wishes to express their regrets for several unfortunate printing errors that occurred in the last issue—Volume 4, Number 1. The first error was the inadvertant deletion of Julie Mackoff's name from the list of Associate Editors on the masthead. The Editorial Board takes this opportunity to apologize to Julie and to recognize and thank her for the work she had done for the Review. The other errors were the inadvertent misspelling of the following names: Hon. James M. Dolliver, Philip M. Phibbs, Jill Strickland Ruckelshaus, William D. Ruckelshaus, William T. Weyerhaeuser, R. Franklin Thompson, Donald S. Cohen and Mark Reutlinger. The Editorial Board apologizes to each of the individuals named above and is taking the necessary precautions to ensure that such errors do not reoccur.

As the Table of Contents indicates, this issue contains diverse subject matter. First, it includes Dean Fredric C. Tausend's remarks at the annual meeting of the Law School's Board of Visitors, outlining the goals for the new law center. Second, Doctor Andrew S. Watson's article provides an insightful analysis of the role of a mid-city law center and related objectives for legal education. Next, the issue contains the third article in a series on the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (PNEPPCA) — Mr. Preston Michie's article dealing with the implementation and purchase authority provisions of the Act. Finally, this issue offers Mr. Todd M. Johnson's comprehensive treatment of the relationship between community property law and the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.
