About the Artist:

Daniel M. Bryner is a freelance graphic designer who resides in Olympia, WA. Daniel's personal experience within the juvenile justice system has opened his eyes to the significant need for change. From sharing his story at the school-to-prison pipeline and Washington Supreme Court symposium to designing infographics depicting racial and ethnic disparities, Daniel Bryner has committed his art, graphic design, and life to God and Social Justice. Daniel is also the co-author of Transitions: From Danielle to Daniel, from Victim to Advocate, which is featured in this issue of the Seattle Journal for Social Justice.
