Social Justice Monday

Aug 29 | 12:00-12:50 pm | Sullivan Hall C5

Social Justice Mondays is a weekly series that encourages discussion about the many issues surrounding the idea of "social justice" in order to foster learning and strengthen the social justice community of students, faculty and staff at the law school. In our first session of the year we will explore the very definition of social justice through the work and voices of students, alumni, faculty, and staff. What does the 'act' of social justice require? What is the role of law students and attorneys in movements that work to advance social justice?

WSBA Annual Trial Advocacy Program

Saturday Nov 19th

Washington State Bar Association New Lawyer Education seeks volunteer jurors for an annual mock trial. New attorneys try mock cases in front of a real judge and jury...with nothing on the line! Anyone with an interest in the courtroom process is welcome to volunteer.

Volunteers will have the opportunity to observe courtroom procedure, support new attorneys in their growth at trial, network with attorneys and judges, and deliberate and render a verdict.
