Dean's Spotlight

SEATTLE
UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

Monday, April 8, 2013

Dear Colleagues,

Later this week we will commemorate our 40th Anniversary by gathering together with colleagues, alumni and friends to celebrate the accomplishments of some of our distinguished alumni:

Justice Charles W. Johnson '76
Washington Supreme Court

William Marler '87
Marler Clark LLP PS

Debora G. Juarez '87
Williams Kastner PLLC

David Keenan '08
Orrick Herrington & Sutcliffe

I hope you will all be able to join us for this very special occasion.

Best regards,
Mark

point for a 2014-15 commemorative volume. The journal's invitation letter cites his "outstanding record of accomplishment and significance to Critical Race Theory scholarship (that) has reshaped how legal scholars understand civil rights law, race jurisprudence, and whiteness studies." The journal will invite eight scholars to comment on his work. Also, Michigan Law Review accepted his proposal to review Amy Greenberg's A Wicked War: Polk, Clay, Lincoln, and the 1846 Invasion of Mexico for its annual review of books related to law.

Lily Kahng's article (co-authored with Mary Louise Fellows, Minnesota Law School), Costly Mistakes: Undertaxed Business Owners and Overtaxed Workers, was published in the George Washington Law Review. http://www.gwlr.org/2013/03/02/fellows_kahng/

Jack Kirkwood's article, The Essence of Antitrust: Protecting Consumers and Small Suppliers from Anticompetitive Conduct, has been published by the Fordham Law Review. The article is one of fourteen articles in a symposium on The Goals of Antitrust that Jack helped organize.

A chapter by Jean Stefancic and Richard Delgado appeared in Handbook of Critical Race Theory in Education, edited by Marvin Lynn, Adrienne D. Dixon and published in March.

George Van Cleve's article, Bankruptcy and the Future of Insurance Risk-Sharing, will be published in the American Bankruptcy Institute Law Review this spring. His essay, Jefferson the President: Reclaiming the Republic in Europe's Long Shadow, will be published in Reviews in American History in June.

Presentations

Patrick Brown delivered a paper on Law in Classicism and Classicism in Law in early April at a conference at Loyola Marymount University, the Jesuit university in Los Angeles.

Annette Clark has been invited by Dean Avi Soifer of the University of Hawaii to speak in Honolulu on April 19 on the subject of the future of legal education as part of a program for the federal bench.

Richard Delgado and Jean Stefancic spoke at a conference at the law school on Ron Collins' and David Skover's book Mania, which discusses the Beat generation of writers and poets. The two plan to publish articles growing out of their remarks in Seattle University Law Review.

Margaret Fisher and two Garfield High School youth court members made a presentation on the Seattle Youth Traffic Court at Citizen University on March 23. Fisher also taught an immigration lesson at the Leadership Conference of the Washington Council for the Social Studies in Chelan on March 15.

Anna Roberts has been selected to present a work-in-progress, Casual Ostracism: Jury Exclusion on the Basis of Criminal Convictions, at the 2013 AALS Mid-Year Conference on Criminal Justice.

Jim Rosenfeld organized and presented at a two-day training for the Missouri Administrative Hearings Commission in Jefferson City, MO, on March 26-27. The training was designed to provide a background for those administrative law judges who would be hearing special education disputes, a task recently assigned to the Commission.

Julie Shapiro published a brief account of the oral arguments in the marriage cases before the Supreme Court in Crosscut.

George Van Cleve has accepted the Law School Moot Court Board's invitation to be the keynote speaker at its annual banquet on April 13.

Other News

Mary Bowman completed her service as Chair of the Program Committee for the AALS Section on Legal Writing, Reasoning and Research and continued her work as Chair of the Scribes Law-Review Award Committee.

The Center for Global Justice inducted six new Student Fellows: Yasmin Christopher, Whitney Knox, Lizamarie Mohammad, Alison Pastor, Holly Scott and Alison Wright. The Center for Global Justice has joined SU's Center for Environmental Justice and Sustainability, Center for the Study of Justice in Society, and Wismer Center for Gender Justice and Diversity to co-sponsor Circle of Inquiry, a project to facilitate collaborative and interdisciplinary inquiry and research by SU faculty. The first theme the project has taken up is "the interrelated moral challenges of climate change, ecological degradation, and social justice." Twenty-nine faculty members from different schools and departments of SU are participating in this project.

Ronald Clark, on behalf of the Justice Department and Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe, trained judges and prosecutors in Sarajevo, Bosnia. The attending prosecutors and judges will train prosecutors of war crimes.

On April 2, Eric Eberhard was the lead witness for a workshop held by the Committee on Community Development, Housing and Tribal Affairs of the Washington State House of Representatives to review issues involved in business and economic development on the 29 Indian reservations in the state. Eric's testimony was well received by the committee and elicited follow-up questions from every member of the committee.

Madeline Kass is participating in a university-wide, interdisciplinary academic project co-sponsored by Seattle University's Center for the Study of Justice in Society, the Wismer Center, the School of Law's Center for Global Justice, and the Center for Environmental Justice and Sustainability. The program, Circles of Inquiry, examines the interrelated moral challenges of climate change, ecological degradation, and social injustice.

Denis Stearns has signed a contract to author two entries in FOOD ISSUES: AN ENCYCLOPEDIA, a multivolume inter-disciplinary reference-work being edited by Ken Albala, Ph.D, and to be published in 2014 by Sage Publications. The entries will be entitled, E. coli O157:H7: A Multifaceted History, and Food, Torts, and Civil Litigation.
