The Japanese American Incarceration: Civil Liberties & Upholding the Rule of Law, Then and Now

April 13 | 8:30am – 12:30pm | Pigott Auditorium

During World War II, 120,000 persons of Japanese ancestry were removed from their West Coast homes and incarcerated in desolate camps in the interior U.S. Two-thirds were American citizens. They had committed no crimes; they were incarcerated simply because of their race. Please join us for an important discussion of the infamous Supreme Court cases that upheld that incarceration, the coram nobis cases that successfully reopened them, and their haunting present-day relevance.

Distinguished speakers include Karen Korematsu, daughter of Fred Korematsu, who challenged the wartime orders in Korematsu v. United States, and Judge Marilyn Hall Patel, who vacated Mr. Korematsu's conviction.

Program made possible through the generous support of Miller Nash Graham & Dunn LLP, Seattle University School of Law, and its Fred T. Korematsu Center for Law and Equality, Minami Tamaki Yamauchi Kwok & Lee Foundation, and the Law Offices of Rodney L. Kawakami.

This event is free to members of the public and students. Lawyers may also pay for CLE credit. Registration is required.

General Announcements

Mary Ellen Krug Award

Deadline March 30 @ Noon

The Mary Ellen Krug Award honors a student who has shown strong interest, promise, or distinction in labor and employment law and includes a cash grant. The cash grant, awarded by the King County Bar Association Labor and Employment Section, is a variable amount generated in part from proceeds originating from the annual Pacific Coast Labor and Employment Law Conference each spring, which now comprises an endowed scholarship at Seattle University School of Law.* In addition to the cash grant, the winner is honored with recognition at the Conference luncheon attended by some 300 labor and employment attorneys. The conference awards luncheon is typically held in early May. For details see the guidelines posted on the Labor and Employment Law Association (LELA) TWEN site.

Law Review SUPra Student Publication Competition

Competition Dates: February 12 – March 31

The Seattle University Law Review's online companion journal SUPra is hosting a writing competition open to all SU Law School students! The winner of this competition will have their entry published on the SUPra website alongside prominent legal academics. Being featured on the SUPra website is a noteworthy accolade that will show prospective employers your ability to write compelling, thoughtful responses to recent legal developments. Please visit the TWEN page, "Law Review SUPRA" for details beginning on February 20, 2017. Email further inquiries to Contact Info Redacted.

Judicial Clerkship at Tulalip Tribal Court

Deadline April 6

Description: The Tulalip Tribal Court is a general civil and misdemeanor criminal court. The Judicial Clerk will draft orders, research motions, draft memorandum on discreet legal issues, participate in multi-disciplinary meetings for drafting of rules. The position may require confidential research on procedural or substantive Indian criminal justice issues.

Please provide a resume, letter of interest, transcript and a writing sample via email to: Brooke Pinkham, Contact Info Redacted

Washington State Minority and Justice Commission – Law Student Liaison Position

Deadline 4/18 | Open to students who will be 2Ls or 3Ls in fall 2018

The Washington State Minority and Justice Commission is a Commission of the Supreme Court of the State of Washington charged with the mission of eradicating racial and ethnic bias in the justice system. Student liaisons, while non-voting, are integral parts of work of the commission, and they have the opportunity to learn about pressing issues affecting minorities within the justice system and to meet many of the leaders on those issues. Liaisons should attend all Minority and Justice Commission meetings, contribute to the work of the commission, bring back the work of the commission to the law school, and collaborate with student liaisons from the other law schools.
