NADIA B. AHMAD

Nadia B. Ahmad is a visiting assistant professor at Pace Law School. Professor Ahmad's research explores the intersections of energy law and the environment and draws on international investment law, energy justice, corporate best practices, and corporate social responsibility. Alongside her scholarship on energy law and the environment, Professor Ahmad also writes about women's legal rights in South Asia and the Middle East. Professor Ahmad earned an undergraduate degree in Comparative Literature with language emphases in Latin and English from the University of California at Berkeley with high honors, a law degree (JD) from the University of Florida, Levin College of Law, and a masters of law (LLM) in Environmental and Natural Resources Law from the University of Denver Sturm College of Law.

LINDA R. CRANE

Linda R. Crane is a Professor of Law and former Associate Dean of The John Marshall Law School in Chicago, Illinois. Professor Crane attended the University of Illinois at Urbana, Illinois, graduating in 1977 before entering Northwestern University, where she graduated from both the School of Law and its J.L. Kellogg Graduate School of Management in 1981.

Since 1989, she has been a member of the full-time faculty of The John Marshall Law School, where she teaches Property Law, Commercial Law, Federal Securities Regulation, Race and Gender in the Law, Elder Law and Agency, and Partnerships and Unincorporated Entities. In 1994, she was granted tenure at John Marshall, and in 2000, she was promoted to the rank of Full Professor. From 2004 to 2007, she served as Associate Dean for Faculty Development—a role in which she was responsible for mentoring faculty and managing institutional resources that were designated for faculty use both inside and outside of the classroom. In this role, Associate Dean Crane took a special interest in understanding the needs of John Marshall's hundreds of adjunct faculty and in including them in more aspects of campus life, especially promoting teaching effectiveness training programs.

Professor Crane has served on many important not-for-profit trustee boards as a means of exerting her influence over issues about which she cares most deeply: education, fair elections, and hunger. She is currently a Trustee for The Chicago State University Foundation, the Midwestern People of Color Legal Scholarship Conference, Inc. (of which she was an incorporator in 1990), and the Greater Chicago Food Depository. She is former member of the Board of Trustees of The Law School Admissions Council (LSAC), and past board president of both The Cabrini-Green Tutoring Program and The Legal Elections in All Precincts Research and Educational Fund, Inc. (Project LEAP), which was a private fair elections watchdog agency that worked tirelessly for more than 30 years to fight fraud and to increase fairness and transparency in governmental elections in the city of Chicago. Today, she regularly serves as an attorney troubleshooter and Hearing Officer for the Chicago Board of Elections Commissioners.

Professor Crane has authored numerous articles for law journals on various subjects, including family law, legal education, commercial law, and civil rights. Her current scholarship consists of a series of articles about the island-nation of Cuba that are based on her experiences and observations acquired during her four professional research missions there to date. Always concerned with the practical application of the subject matter that she researches and writes about in her scholarly work, she has an impressive record of "walking the walk." Since 2002, she has practiced law in her firm, Crane Law Group, P.C., where she represents small business owners and their families with asset protection strategies, estate planning, and trust and probate administration.

DASH DEJARNATT

Dash DeJarnatt recently graduated cum laude from the Seattle University School of Law. His inspiration for writing this article came from volunteering for a year with the King County Bar Association's Volunteer Legal Services. During that time, Dash encountered many clients who were denied opportunities due to their criminal records. Dash will likely continue to do pro bono work with criminal record vacations, bankruptcy assistance, and debt defense, while focusing on a career in business law, regulatory compliance, and the alcohol industry.

LAURA HARMON

Laura Harmon is a 2014 JD graduate of the Seattle University School of Law where she served as a Research and Technical Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice. Laura received her BA in Mathematics and History from Occidental College in Los Angeles, California. Through her studies and work experience in law school, she focused on issues of criminal victim's rights as well as child sexual abuse cases. She worked on such issues at the King County Prosecuting Attorney's Office, the Snohomish County Prosecuting Attorney's Office, and the US Attorney's Office for the Western District of Washington. She also served as a judicial extern to The Honorable Robert J. Bryan in the United States District Court for the Western District of Washington.

BERTA ESPERANZA HERNÁNDEZ-TRUYOL

Professor Berta Esperanza Hernández-Truyol is a Levin, Mabile & Levin Professor of Law at the University of Florida, Levin College of Law in Gainesville, Florida. Professor Hernández-Truyol teaches courses in International Law, International Human Rights, and Globalization. She

JOU-CHI (GEORGE) HO

Jou-Chi Ho is an international student from Taiwan. Ho graduated with a Bachelor of Business Administration from Providence University in Taiwan. In 2008, he came to the United States to study and received a masters degree in Public Administration at the University of Washington in Seattle. After that, Ho moved to the Deep South to pursue his law degree at Mississippi College School of Law in Jackson, Mississippi.

During his legal education, Ho authored numerous academic papers analyzing complex issues, and made presentations at national conferences around the country. Along with his article in this journal, he published two other papers. Ho received a Second Place Award for one of his papers in the Southeast-Southwest People of Color Conference Law Student Writing Competition in 2013. He also earned recognition in the National Order of Scribes from the American Society of Legal Writers. In his classes, Ho received several Best Paper Awards and the Dean's List award. Jo-Chi Ho graduated with his Juris Doctorate in May of 2014. Currently, he is preparing to become a future licensed attorney.

TAYYAB MAHMUD

Professor Tayyab Mahmud joined Seattle University School of Law in 2006, and is Director of the Center for Global Justice. He served as the Associate Dean for Research and Faculty Development from 2007 to 2009. He holds a PhD in Political Science, and before going to law school taught International Relations and Political Science at various universities in Pakistan and the United States. A graduate of University of California Hastings College of the Law, he is licensed to practice in California and Pakistan. His has worked with the California Attorney General's Office, the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office, the San Francisco-based firm Pettit and Martin, and the Pakistan-based firm Walker Martineau Saleem. He started his career as a law professor at Cleveland-Marshall College of Law in 1989. He was a Law and Public Affairs (LAPA) Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University in 2011–2012, and a Visiting Scholar at Harvard Law School in 1997–1998. Between 2004 and 2006, he was Professor of Law and Chair, Global Perspectives Group, at the John Marshall Law School in Chicago.

From 2006 to 2008, Professor Mahmud was Co-President of the Society of American Law Teachers (SALT), an organization of progressive law teachers working for justice, diversity, and academic excellence. Currently, he serves on the Advisory Committee of the Board of Governors of SALT, and the Steering Committee of the Board of Directors of Latina/o Critical Legal Studies, Inc. (LatCrit). He has served on the editorial boards of The American Journal of Comparative Law, Hastings International and Comparative Law Review, Journal of Third World Legal Studies, and the Journal of Humanities Research.

Professor Mahmud has published extensively in the areas of comparative constitutional law, human rights, international law, legal history, and legal theory. His primary research areas are critical legal theory, colonial legal regimes, international law, and post-colonial legal systems. His current research is focused on neoliberal political economy and extra-constitutional usurpation and exercise of power in post-colonial states.

KELLI RODRIGUEZ CURRIE

Kelli Rodriguez Currie is a 2014 graduate of the Seattle University School of Law, where she earned both a JD and a Masters of Sport Administration and Leadership. She graduated from California University of Pennsylvania in 2011, where she earned a Bachelor of Science in Sport Management. During her time in law school, Kelli served as an Article Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice and worked as an intern with the Seattle University Athletic Department.

Kelli focused her study in the area of sport law with the desire to advocate for increased representation for collegiate student-athletes. In addition to exploring the legal questions surrounding student-athlete eligibility, her thesis research examined student-athletes' satisfaction with the communications they received regarding eligibility requirements and how important they believed those communications to be. Kelli's multidisciplinary approach to her field and academic achievement earned her recognition as a finalist for the Wallace Loh Academic Excellence Award.

FRANCISCO VALDES

Francisco Valdes, Professor of Law, earned a BA in 1978 from the University of California at Berkeley, a JD with honors in 1984 from the University of Florida College of Law, and a JSM in 1991 and a JSD in 1994 from Stanford Law School. Between law school and graduate work, he practiced as a civil commercial litigator with Miami and San Francisco law firms, and taught as an adjunct professor at Golden Gate Law School. In 1991, while working on his JSD dissertation for Stanford, he joined the faculty at California Western School of Law in San Diego, receiving tenure in 1994, before joining the University of Miami (UM) faculty in 1996. At UM, he co-founded the law school's Center for Hispanic & Caribbean Legal Studies and its Spain Study-Abroad Summer Program, serving as co-director of each. Since 2008, he also has served as founding Faculty Advisor to the UM Race and Social Justice Law Review. In 2010, Dr. Valdes was designated a Dean's Distinguished Scholar, and appointed founding Director of the UM Junior Faculty Development program to ensure the well-rounded progress of newer faculty.

Dr. Valdes's work focuses on constitutional law and theory, Latina/o legal studies, critical outsider jurisprudence and Queer scholarship. Since 1995, Dr. Valdes has contributed regularly to LatCrit symposia and publications to help elucidate LatCrit approaches to knowledge-production, critical theory, and academic activism. During this time, Dr. Valdes's work on constitutional theory, critical race studies, and queer scholarship also has been published in numerous law reviews, other academic journals, and various book anthologies, including both specialty and mainstream venues. In 2002, Dr. Valdes edited (with Angela Harris and Jerome Culp) the collection of essays, Crossroads, Histories and Directions: A New Critical Race Theory. Currently, Dr. Valdes is working with other RaceCrit/LatCrit scholars on Social Justice in Local and Global Context: From Critical Theory to Legal Action, a multi-media theory-practice reader based on critical outsider jurisprudence for West Publishing. He also is developing Law, Academy and Society: Critical Outsider Studies, US Legal Culture and Transnational Justice Agendas, an e-book project, while continuing work on Progresismo Juridico y Teoria Critica, a translation (into Spanish) of his selected publications. He also continues to work actively on varied essays, articles, and book chapters relating to law, theory, policy, and justice.

Dr. Valdes served as founding co-chair of LatCrit, Inc., has served on many professional boards, and is active in many diverse organizations and journals dedicated to law and social justice, including the American Association of Law Schools (AALS), the Society of American Law Teachers (SALT), and the Law and Society Association (LSA). He also serves as Founding Editor of Discrimination, Law and Justice, one of the earliest and most successful e-journals of the Social Science Research Network (SSRN). In 2002, Dr. Valdes received the Clyde Ferguson Award of the AALS Minority Groups Section. In 2004, he also received the Extraordinary Service Award from the National Conference of the Regional People of Color Scholarship Conferences. In 2006, Dr. Valdes was invited to deliver the Jerome McCristal Culp Memorial Lecture and, more recently, he received in 2010 the SALT Great Teacher Award.

Dr. Valdes regularly speaks at academic conferences and similar events, and teaches in the areas of US constitutional law, outsider jurisprudence, law and popular culture, and comparative law. He also conducts seminars, workshops, and mini-courses internationally on these or related topics. Born in La Habana, Cuba, Dr. Valdes now lives in Miami Beach, Florida, with Peppy, his friend (and dog).
