

4-14-2018

About the authors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj>

Part of the Law Commons

Recommended Citation

(2018) "About the authors," Seattle Journal for Social Justice: Vol. 16: Iss. 2, Article 8.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj/vol16/iss2/8>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Publications and Programs at Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Seattle Journal for Social Justice by an authorized editor of Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons.

About the Authors

Nikos Koutras

Nikos works as postdoctoral research at the Faculty of Law of the University of Antwerp. He holds a doctoral degree in Political Science (Department of Foreign Languages, Translation and Interpretation, Ionian University, Greece, 2014) and a doctoral degree in Copyright Law (Macquarie Law School, Australia, 2017). He is currently developing his research at the interface between copyright governance and open access, which is a very original approach to open access.

Wyatt Kozinski

J.D. candidate, University of Virginia Law School, 2018. This essay benefitted greatly from the advice of Professor Darryl K. Brown of the University of Virginia Law School, and Dr. Richard A. Leo of the University of San Francisco School of Law.

Sarah McHenry

Sarah McHenry will receive her Juris Doctorate from American University Washington College of Law in May 2018. She previously attended the College of William & Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia, where she obtained her B.A. in Psychology and French. After graduation, she taught 7th and 8th grade science in rural North Carolina with Teach for America. Throughout her law school career, she has worked in various public defender offices and clinics to help advocate for children caught in the juvenile delinquent system. She will be clerking for the Honorable Cynthia H. Jones of Baltimore City Circuit Court for the 2018-2019 term.

Pat Newcomb and Beth D. Cohen

Pat Newcombe is Associate Dean for Library and Information Resources and Associate Professor of Law at Western New England University School of Law.

Beth D. Cohen is Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, Director of Legal Research and Writing, and Professor of Law at Western New England University Law School.

The authors would like to thank Dean Eric Gouvin and all of the Western New England University School of Law faculty who participate in and support the Mini-Law School Program and the Honorable Kenneth Neiman (ret.) for serving as the moderator. We thank them for generously sharing their time and expertise. The authors would also like to thank Carla Cohen for her advice and feedback regarding the proposal and promotional materials.

Adrienne Rodriguez

Adrienne Rodriguez is a third-year law student at Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law located in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. She has received her B.S. in Criminal Justice and B.A. in Psychology from Florida International University. She has a strong passion for serving others during times of need and gained an interest in immigration law when she decided to write her article as part of Nova Law Review's candidacy program. Presently, she serves as an Articles Editor for Nova Law Review, and a Research Assistant to Dean Michele N. Struffolino, focusing on gender bias and current social issues women face in the legal profession.

Adrienne would like to thank the Seattle Journal for Social Justice for accepting her article for publication and shedding light on the injustice that certain visa holders face in our immigration system today. A special thanks to Legal Research and Writing Professor Jani Maurer at NSU for her countless hours of assistance, patience, and support throughout the writing process.

Roberto Rosas

Professor Roberto Rosas is currently a Research Professor of Law at St. Mary's University School of Law, San Antonio, Texas. He received the 2013 Distinguished Faculty Award from the St. Mary's University Alumni Association. Prior to moving to the United States, Professor Rosas was a professor in the engineering department of the Universidad de Guadalajara in Mexico, where he obtained his degree of Electrical Mechanic Engineer (B.S.) His postgraduate studies, prior to receiving his law degree, include Harvard Graduate School of Business, University of Massachusetts at Amherst and Oxford Centre for Management Studies. He received his law degree (J.D.) from the Universidad de Guadalajara, graduating at the top of his class and later became a professor of law at the University of Guadalajara. He received his Doctor of Juridical Science (J.S.D.) at the Universidad Europea de Madrid and has also studied graduate courses on Canon Law as well as Comparative Law of Mexico and the United States. He was recently named by the Universidad de Guadalajara as an External Professor of Law of the Doctor of the Science of Law (J.S.D.) program. Professor Rosas is the author of numerous laws review articles published in the Americas, Africa, Asia, Europe and Oceania. He was elected president of the Commission on Legal Affairs for the Advisory Council of the Institute of Mexicans Abroad (2003-2008 and 2009-2011.) He is the founding President of the Center of the Mexicans in the Globalization (CMG.) The Author wishes to express his most sincere appreciation to Mons. Dr. Alejandro W. Bunge for his text, El Nuevo Proceso Matrimonial de Nulidad Matrimonial. His material was invaluable in the writing of this article. The author also thanks Krishna De La Cruz, J.D. for her assistance and valuable contributions to this article

Lauren Malpica

Lauren Malpica received her Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from the University of Washington in 2013. She is currently a third-year law student at Seattle University School of Law. With the goal of increasing access to justice, Lauren hopes to pursue a career that allows her to represent low and middle-income persons in matters related to civil and administrative litigation.

Margaret Quartararo

Margaret Quartararo is an Oregon native and received her undergraduate degree in Political Science from Seattle University in 2015. As a student at Seattle University School of Law, Margaret has been involved in the Alternative Dispute Resolution Board, the Women's Law Caucus, and the Environmental Law Society. After graduation, she will be clerking for Judge Lisa L. Sutton in Division II of the Washington State Appellate Court.

Andrew Stokes

Andrew Stokes graduated from Whitman College with Honors degrees in Politics and Rhetoric & Film Studies. Andrew is a member of the Seattle University School of Law Moot Court Board and is an Executive Editor of the Seattle Journal for Social Justice; he will receive his J.D. from Seattle University in 2018.