

2018

16.3 About The Authors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj>

Part of the Law Commons

---

Recommended Citation

(2018) "16.3 About The Authors," Seattle Journal for Social Justice: Vol. 16 : Iss. 3 , Article 5.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj/vol16/iss3/5>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Publications and Programs at Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Seattle Journal for Social Justice by an authorized editor of Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons.

About the Authors

---

STEPHEN ANDERSON

Stephen Anderson is a Seattle native and current resident of the city. He completed his undergraduate degree at the University of Washington in 2013, and J.D. at Seattle University in 2018. Through the course of his education he interned at the Northwest Immigrant Rights Project and Seattle City Attorney's Office, participated in the International Refugee Assistance Project, and externed at the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Washington. Recently admitted to the Washington State Bar, he is currently practicing criminal law in Seattle.

LORRAINE BANNAI

Lorraine Bannai is Director of the Fred T. Korematsu Center for Law and Equality and a Professor of Lawyering Skills at Seattle University School of Law. After earning her J.D. from the University of San Francisco School of Law, Professor Bannai practiced with what is now the San Francisco firm of Minami Tamaki. While in practice, she was on the legal team that successfully challenged Fred Korematsu's conviction for violating military orders removing Japanese Americans from the West Coast during World War II. She has written and spoken widely on the issue of the wartime incarceration, including testimony before United States Senate Judiciary Committee and presentations before numerous academic and civic institutions such as the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco, the Japanese American National Museum, and the Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association. Her recent writing includes a biography of Fred Korematsu, Enduring Conviction: Fred Korematsu and His Quest for Justice, published by the University of Washington Press.

STEVEN BENDER

Associate Dean Steven Bender is a national academic leader on immigration law and policy, as well as an expert in real estate law. Among his honors, Bender received the Minority Groups Section of the Association of American Law Schools C. Clyde Ferguson, Jr., Award, recognizing scholarly reputation, mentoring of junior faculty, and teaching excellence.

Associate Dean Bender is a prolific author of many law review articles, a casebook on real estate transactions, a national treatise on real estate financing, and several other books including "Mea Culpa: Lessons on Law and Regret from U.S. History" (NYU Press 2015); "Run for the Border: Vice and Virtue in U.S.-Mexico Border Crossings," (NYU Press 2012); "Greasers and Gringos: Latinos, Law, and the American Imagination," (NYU Press 2003); "Tierra y Libertad: Land, Liberty, and Latino Housing" (NYU Press 2010); "One Night in America: Robert Kennedy, Cesar Chavez, and the Dream of Dignity," (Routledge 2008), winner of a 2008 Oregon Book Award.

He is an elected member of the American Law Institute, the American College of Real Estate Lawyers, and the American College of Mortgage Attorneys, and served as co-president of the Society of American Law Teachers (SALT).

ZSEA BOWMANI

Zsea Bowmani (@LiberationGreen) is a legal scholar and civil rights attorney with a focus on race, gender, reproductive justice, human and animal rights, and environmental justice. Zsea was the Tawani Transgender Rights Staff Attorney at the ACLU of Illinois and the first Reproductive Justice Fellow at the National LGBTQ Task Force in Washington, D.C., where he developed the organization's involvement in the U.S. Supreme Court cases Whole Woman's Health v. Hellerstedt and Zubik v. Burwell. Zsea currently serves on the National Trans Bar Association Board where he works to support transgender people in the legal profession and to increase access to affordable and culturally competent legal services.

A native of Los Angeles, Zsea received his B.A. from Stanford University and his J.D. from Santa Clara University School of Law. In his free time, he enjoys writing, hiking, biking, and baking plant-based desserts.

SHELLEY CAVALIERI

Shelley Cavalieri, Associate Professor of Law at the University of Toledo, is a scholar of gender and property law. Currently living in Quito, Ecuador, as a Fulbright Scholar, her scholarship focuses on the use of law as a tool for improving the human condition. Her various research projects have centered on land reform, human trafficking, and land banking. Her current projects focus on feminist social activism and women's strategies for empowerment. Her scholarship has been published in the Denver Law Review, the Indiana Law Journal, and the St. John's Law Review, among others. An award-winning teacher, Professor Cavalieri teaches property, land use planning, and feminist legal theory.

ROBERTO CORRADA

Roberto L. Corrada is Mulligan Burselson Chair in Modern Learning and Professor of Law at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law, where he teaches employment discrimination and labor law, contracts, and administrative law. Professor Corrada has published articles on civil rights, affirmative action, labor, employment, and law teaching. He is a member of the Labor Law Group, and has casebooks in Employment Discrimination Law, Labor Law, and Administrative Law. Professor Corrada has done extensive work with the Denver Latinx community, including serving on the Board of the Colorado Hispanic Bar Association and helping to form and lead the Denver Urban Debate League, a nonprofit that helps to fund debate programs in the Denver and Aurora public schools. Professor Corrada graduated from the Catholic University of America Columbus

School of Law in 1985, where he served as editor-in-chief of the law review.

CHRISTINE DICKSON

Christine Dickson received her J.D. from Seattle University School of Law in 2018. During law school, she served as Executive Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice and externed at the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia in The Hague, Netherlands. She earned her B.F.A in Dance from Cornish College of the Arts in 2015, and she remains active on the Seattle dance scene. She currently practices trusts and estates law.

MARC-TIZOC GONZALEZ

Marc-Tizoc González is a Professor of Law at St. Thomas University in Miami Gardens, Florida. He teaches Property, Wills and Trusts, and seminars regarding civil rights, economic justice, Latinas/os, and poverty law. Past chair of the AALS Section on Poverty Law, current secretary and director of LatCrit, Inc., and executive committee member of the AALS Sections on Agricultural and Food Law, Civil Rights Law, and Minority Groups, Professor González studies how constitutional jurisprudence, civil rights statutes, and property law affect people who are hungry, impoverished, or otherwise socially marginalized, as well as how lawyers, especially those with racialized ethnic identities, work to promote social justice. For example, he argues to view “food justice as interracial justice” with a focus on the jurisprudential and social implications of the “food-sharing cases,” challenges to municipal laws that criminalize people who publicly share food with homeless and other hungry people at city-owned properties like parks or sidewalks. He also writes “critical ethnic legal histories,” narrating forgotten pasts wherein racialized workers cultivated interracial solidarity to advance an emancipatory vision of social justice. Finally, he has begun to write about the post-dictatorship Latin American jurisprudence of habeas data, a third-generation international human right to information, which can provide a legal check against “big data” and ubiquitous electronic surveillance.

EDWIN LINDO

Edwin Lindo earned his law degree from the University of Washington where he later served as Affiliate Faculty. His research, scholarship and community organizing is focused on Critical Race Theory and Social Justice. At the law school he taught courses on Race and Law and Latinx Critical Race Theory. He is currently an appointed Faculty Lecturer in the Department of Family Medicine at UW Medicine where he focuses on addressing issues of racial and social inequities found in medical education, the bedside, and in medical research. His work embodies the commitment of seeking justice with/and for marginalized communities.

One of Edwin’s most recent projects is Estelita’s Library—a community library and bookstore focused on social justice issues, located in the Beacon Hill neighborhood of Seattle, WA.

TAYYAB MAHMUD

Tayyab Mahmud is Professor of Law and Director of the Center for Global Justice at Seattle University School of Law. A graduate of University of California Hastings College of the Law, he was a Law & Public Affairs (LAPA) Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University in 2011-12, and a Visiting Scholar at Harvard Law School in 1997-1998.

From 2006-2008, Professor Mahmud was Co-President of the Society of American Law Teachers (SALT) and currently serves on the Board of Directors of Latina/o Critical Legal Studies, Inc. (LatCrit). He has served on the editorial boards of The American Journal of Comparative Law, Hastings Int’l & Comparative Law Review, Journal of Third World Legal Studies, and the Journal of Humanities Research.

Professor Mahmud has published extensively in the areas of comparative constitutional law, human rights, international law, legal history and legal theory. His primary research areas are critical legal theory, colonial legal regimes, international law, and post-colonial legal systems. His current research is focused on neoliberal political economy and extra-constitutional usurpation of power in post-colonial states.

AIMEE MAJOUÉ

Aimee Majoué is an attorney with Crowe & Dunlevy in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. As a summa cum laude graduate of the Oklahoma City University School of Law in 2018, Aimee was inducted into the Order of the Barrister. In 2016, Aimee worked in collaboration with others to create a Homeless Task Force in Oklahoma City to better address the needs of the city's homeless and low-income population. Aimee was awarded the Liberty Bell Award in 2018 by the Oklahoma Bar Association for her work in legal advocacy for the homeless population in Oklahoma City. With the Homeless Task Force, Aimee is working on creating a Homeless Docket to tackle the causes of poverty while alleviating the weight of charges on the homeless population. Aimee can be reached at aimee.majoue@crowedunlevy.com for questions or comments.

SARU MATAMBANADZO

Saru Matambanadzo is a nationally known authority on gender equality and workplace equity whose scholarship examines issues through robust engagement with critical legal theory, feminist legal theory and questions of legal personhood. With grounding in continental and analytic philosophy and women's studies as well as law, she takes an interdisciplinary approach to exploring legal personhood, animal rights, legal education and laws related to pregnancy. A graduate of Harvard Law School and University of Pittsburgh, she joined the Tulane Law faculty in 2010 after receiving a PhD in women's studies from UCLA. In 2014-15, she was Tulane Law's inaugural Gordon Gamm Faculty Scholar, an award to support the work of early-career professors.

Matambanadzo has taught seminars and courses in gender and legal studies at UCLA, California State University, Long Beach, and the University of Oregon. She has also published on legal sex for transgender persons, philosophy of legal education, legal personhood, pregnancy discrimination, and feminist legal theory.

MARGARET MONTOYA

Margaret Montoya is Professor Emerita of Law at UNM School of Law & Visiting Professor, Department of Family & Community Medicine, UNM Health Sciences Center.

Professor Montoya was part of the first group of women and men of color who attended Harvard Law School. When she graduated in 1978, she won the prestigious Harvard University's Sheldon Traveling Fellowship that allowed her to study affirmative action policies in Malaysia and India.

Professor Montoya was an active member of the UNM law school faculty from 1992-2012 and, before retiring, was licensed to practice law in Massachusetts, New York, and New Mexico. She worked to create programs and partnerships to increase student and faculty diversity in law and medicine. She served for several years as the Senior Advisor to Chancellor Paul Roth in the UNM Health Science Center. She continues to work part time on issues of racial and health equity.

Professor Montoya's scholarship on issues of identity, narrative, resistance to assimilation, and racial equity in education appears in law reviews, anthologies, and casebooks and is used throughout the U.S. Professor Montoya has been recognized with many awards by her professional peers and by the Latinx community for her academic and activist work.

JORGE ROIG

Jorge R. Roig is Associate Professor of Law and Director of Neighborhood Programs at the Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center. Professor Roig's primary areas of teaching and research are: Constitutional Law; Free Speech; Internet and Technology Law; and Intellectual Property. He is also leading several initiatives involving underserved neighborhood communities in Long Island, including a Mock Trial Program and a new Street Law course in collaboration with Brentwood High School. Professor Roig has written on the application of the Free Speech Clause to emerging technologies, as well as on the implications of Free Speech doctrine to elections and democracy, among other topics.

Before becoming a professor, he served as Judicial Clerk to then Associate Justice, later Chief Justice, Federico Hernández Denton, at the Puerto Rico Supreme Court, and to Judge Salvador E. Casellas at the United States District Court for the District of Puerto Rico. He also labored in private practice at Fiddler, González & Rodríguez, P.S.C., and served as Assistant Secretary of Justice at the Puerto Rico Department of Justice.

Professor Roig did his undergraduate studies at Harvard University, and obtained his Juris Doctor from the University of California at Berkeley School of Law.

DANIELA RUIZ-FERREYRA

Daniela Ruiz-Ferreya is a recipient of the Dean's Diversity Scholarship and the King County Bar Foundation Scholarship. She recently graduated cum laude from Seattle University School of Law, where she served as the Article Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice and President of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Board. Daniela was selected as a participant for the United Nations Young Professionals Programme and is currently practicing civil litigation and volunteering with the Seattle Office of Immigrant and Refugee Affairs. She is a member of the Washington State Bar Association, Hispanic National Bar Association, and American Society of International Law.

ANTHONY VARONA

Tony Varona is professor of law and the former vice dean and associate dean for faculty and academic affairs at American University Washington College of Law. He serves as co-editor of the AALS Journal of Legal Education and is on the board of directors of Stonewall National Museum and Archives. He teaches Contracts, Administrative Law, Sexuality/Gender Law, and Media Law and writes in some of these areas as well. Before entering full-time teaching, he practiced at Skadden Arps, Mintz Levin, and the Federal Communications Commission, and served as the first general counsel and legal director for the Human Rights Campaign, the nation's largest LGBTQ civil rights organization.

BRENDA WILLIAMS

Brenda Williams is currently the Co-Director for the Tribal Court Public Defense Clinic, at the University of Washington School of Law. The philanthropy-supported Tribal Court Public Defense Clinic offers students hands-on experience in public defense under faculty supervision, in the Tulalip Tribal Court. In their practice, students center justice for their Native clients while simultaneously supporting tribal sovereignty. In her faculty role, she has taught Criminal Procedure, American Indian Law and Lat-Crit Theory. She received her Juris Doctorate from the University of Washington School of Law and her Master of Public Administration from the University of Washington Evans School of Public Affairs, where she focused on policy work within the criminal justice system. Professor Williams thanks her co-authors Edwin Lindo and Marc-Tizoc González, for engaging, without hesitation, the question of hunger and the pursuit of justice. She also thanks Professor Margaret Montoya, for her unending inspiration and support.