

Seattle Journal for Social Justice

Volume 19
Issue 1 Fall 2020

Article 8

12-31-2020

About the Authors

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj>

Recommended Citation

(2020) "About the Authors," Seattle Journal for Social Justice: Vol. 19 : Iss. 1 , Article 8.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj/vol19/iss1/8>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Publications and Programs at Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Seattle Journal for Social Justice by an authorized editor of Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons.

About the Authors

THOMAS KLEVEN

Thomas Kleven is a Professor of Law at the Thurgood Marshall School of Law. He teaches Property, State and Local Government, and Environmental Law. His book Equitable Sharing: Distributing the Benefits and Detriments of Democratic Society argues that a principle of equitable sharing, which requires that all aspects of social life be fairly shared among society's members, is central to what it means to be a democratic society. The book also examines the role of the judiciary in promoting equitable sharing. Professor Kleven is a member and is on the board of ClassCrits, and is a member of the Democratic Socialists of America. In 2016, he ran for Congress as a Green Party candidate.

ALINA VENEZIANO

Alina Veneziano is a Ph.D. Candidate at King's College London, UK. Her doctoral thesis focuses on early American bond trading activity and volatility in securities prices. Alina received her LL.M. at New York University School of Law in 2019 and her J.D. at Georgetown University Law Center in 2018. She has an M.B.A. and B.S. in Accounting from Western Governors University. Alina is a member of the Bar of the State of New York. Alina is grateful to the staff of the Seattle Journal for Social Justice for their assistance throughout the editing process. She thanks her family for the endless love and encouragement.

CRAIG WESTERGARD

J.D., April 2020, J. Reuben Clark Law School, Brigham Young University. Thanks to Professor Carl Hernandez for providing feedback and direction for this Note.

BOAZ SEGAL

Dr. Boaz Segal is a lecturer at Sapir Academic College, School of Law. He earned his Bachelor's Degree in Law (LL.B) with honors from the College of Management Academic Studies. In 2016 – in a direct Ph.D. program – Dr. Segal completed his Ph.D. thesis at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Faculty of Law. His areas of research are State's Liability in Private Law, Regulatory Negligence, the Rule of Joint and Several Liability and Deterrence of Public Authorities by the Law of Torts. Dr. Segal regularly participates in conferences and teaches courses and seminars in his areas of expertise.

MICAH BARRY

Micah Barry is the owner of The Law Office of Micah Barry, an employment and education litigation firm that primarily consults with and supports other law firms during the litigation process. He is also a Ph.D.

candidate at the University of Georgia, where he has already successfully defended his dissertation in Educational Administration and Policy in the Mary Frances Early College of Education. Prior to attending the University of Georgia, he was a supervising attorney at The Kirby G. Smith Law Firm, LLC, a premiere plaintiff-side employment litigation boutique firm in Georgia and North Carolina, where he is still Of Counsel. He has also taught as an adjunct at the University of North Georgia Mike Cottrell College of Business. He received his J.D. from the University of Toledo and his B.A. in Philosophy and Political Science from The Ohio State University.

KATE COHN

Kate Cohn received her Juris Doctorate from Seattle University School of Law in December 2020. She was born and raised in Chicago, Illinois and moved to Tacoma, Washington to attend college. She received her B.A. in Sociology from the University of Puget Sound and her M.A. in Student Development Administration from Seattle University. During law school, Kate interned with Andrea D. Lyon, a private criminal defense attorney and national death penalty expert; interned with the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers; externed with the Pierce County Department of Assigned Counsel; and externed with the Washington State Division II Court of Appeals. She was also active at the law school, as staff editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice, chair for the Student Bar Association Elections, member of the Student Bar Association Judicial Board, and research committee member for the Task Force on Race and Washington's Criminal Justice System. Kate hopes to focus on criminal appellate defense as she launches her legal career and will continue to advocate for justice through her representation of clients and through working towards criminal justice reform.

RACHEL SIMON

Rachel Simon will receive her Juris Doctorate from Seattle University School of Law in May 2021. She previously attended Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio, where she obtained her B.A. in Politics. Rachel is originally from Ann Arbor, Michigan but has lived in Seattle since 2014. During law school, Rachel worked at a personal injury firm and for the Seattle City Attorney's Office. She is also active in the law school community, as the Editor-in-Chief for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice, Treasurer for the Public Interest Law Foundation, and is on the research committee for the Race and Criminal Justice Task Force. Prior to law school, Rachel worked as an educator and ultimate frisbee coach.

HUNTER J. RODGERS

Hunter J. Rodgers is an assistant public defender in rural west Georgia, handling cases ranging from traffic violations to multiple life sentences, from initial arrest through appeals. Graduating from Georgia State University College of Law in 2018, Rodgers is an active member of the Georgia Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, serving on their amicus committee since 2019, and editing the monthly case law update since 2020. In the spring of 2021, Rodgers began teaching a section of the trial practice course at his alma mater as an adjunct professor.

LUCY JOHNSTON-WALSH

Lucy Johnston-Walsh is a Clinical Professor of Law and founding director of the Penn State Dickinson Law Children's Advocacy Clinic. Professor Johnston-Walsh's research, teaching and service focus on juvenile law, specifically legal challenges of youth involved in the foster care system. She supervises law students in the legal representation of children involved in the dependency system and her scholarship directly relates to systemic issues presented through the clinic cases, as well as interdisciplinary collaboration in the field of child advocacy. Professor Johnston-Walsh is also the Director of the Center on Children and the Law at Penn State. Prior to directing the Clinic, Ms. Johnston-Walsh worked as a staff attorney at legal services, and as a lobbyist and policy director for a statewide child advocacy organization. Before attending law school, Ms. Johnston-Walsh practiced as a social worker in the public school system of Virginia. She received her Juris Doctor from Penn State Dickinson Law and her Masters in Social Work degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

CAMERON MARTIN

Cameron Martin is a 2021 graduate of Seattle University School of Law, where he focused on Intellectual Property law. Cameron led in such roles as the Executive Research and Training Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice and as Vice President of Membership for the Alternative Dispute Resolution Board. He has worked with nonprofits in the areas of Privacy, Intellectual Property, Family, and Elder law.

Prior to law school, Cameron graduated from Seattle University with degrees in Economics and Philosophy, and then spent a few years working in development at a nonprofit helping older adults age gracefully in their home communities. He intends to pursue professional opportunities at the crossroads of Intellectual Property, Privacy, and Civil Rights.

SIMONA PINTON

Simona Pinton earned her Ph.D. in international law at the University of Padua, Italy, and her LL.M at the Boalt Hall School of Law, University of Berkeley. As a lawyer, she researches and lectures in International law, International criminal law and International and European safeguarding of cultural heritage at both European and U.S. universities. In her consulting capacity she works with the Council of Europe, the European Union and Italian and international NGO in the fields of economic, social and cultural rights – safeguarding and redress - and the reinforcement of the rule of law, in times of peace and conflict.