

4-24-2016

About the Author

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj>

Recommended Citation

(2016) "About the Author," Seattle Journal for Social Justice: Vol. 14: Iss. 1, Article 7.

Available at: <http://digitalcommons.law.seattleu.edu/sjsj/vol14/iss1/7>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Publications and Programs at Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Seattle Journal for Social Justice by an authorized administrator of Seattle University School of Law Digital Commons.

About the Authors

RUBY ALIMENT

Ruby Aliment is a 2016 JD candidate at Seattle University School of Law where she serves as the Managing Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice (SJSJ). She received her BA in Comparative Sociology and a minor in Gender Studies from the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash.

During law school, Ruby clerked for the Washington State Office of the Attorney General in the Antitrust and Consumer Protection Divisions as the 2015 Janet D. Steiger Fellow. Additionally, she worked on Professor Sara Rankin's Homeless Rights Advocacy Project, and interned with Legal Voice, Seattle University School of Law's Community Development and Entrepreneurship Clinic, and the Washington State Bar Association's Moderate Means Program. Her volunteer experience includes projects with the King County Sexual Assault Resource Center (K.S.A.R.C.) and the S.A.F.E. Homeless Experience Legal Protection Clinic through Williams Kastner.

Ruby is indebted to SJSJ for giving her the space to denounce campus sexual assault for the eighth year in a row, and she thanks all of her bright and careful colleagues who edited this article.

DIANA CHEN

Diana was born and raised in Seattle, Washington. She earned a BA in Humanities from Seattle University and is a 2016 JD candidate at Seattle University School of Law. Diana worked as a law clerk for the Northwest Justice Project's Foreclosure Prevention Unit, where she united her passion for real estate and social justice activism. As a law student, Diana has served as a co-president of the Asian Pacific Islander Law Student Association, a student representative for the Asian Bar Association of Washington, and a Content Development Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice. Outside of law school, she loves to dance ballet and traditional Chinese dance. Diana is also active in the Seattle Chinese community, formerly serving as the 2013-2015 Miss Chinese Seattle First Princess. She is honored to be featured in this publication and would like to thank her family for their unwavering support.

BETSY GRAEF

Betsy Graef was the interim director of the Seattle Community Police Commission from July 2013-February 2014. Since that time, she has continued to serve as a consultant to the Commission, working on accountability and policy issues. For four years prior to coming to the Commission, she was the lead policy staff member to the chair of the Seattle City Council's Public Safety Committee.

PATRICK TROY HATFIELD

Troy Hatfield is a JD/MBA candidate at Seattle University. He was raised in Southern New Mexico and West Texas before moving to Boise to complete his undergraduate degree in English Writing at Boise State University. Troy has worked as a freelance writer and editor, a ski instructor, a legal intern at Russell Investments and Leemon + Royer, and will be a judicial extern for Federal District Judge Robert J. Bryan in 2016. At Seattle University, Troy is the treasurer for The International Law Society, a member of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Board, and an Article Editor for the Seattle Journal for Social Justice.

MARC LANDY

Marc Landy is Professor of Political Science at Boston College. He has a PhD in Government from Harvard University. He writes on matters relating to the presidency, federalism, and public policy. His most recent writings have been on the presidency: Obama and FDR, in The Obama Presidency in the Constitutional Order, Carol McNamara and Melanie Marlowe eds.

(2011); Terror and the Executive (National Affairs, Spring 2010); and (Sidney Milkis, co-author) The Presidency in the Eye of the Storm. He is also the co-author of Presidential Greatness. His textbook on American Government is entitled American Government: Enduring Principles, Critical Choices. He is a contributor to Cognoscenti, the online opinion page of the Boston Public Radio station WBUR (<http://cognoscenti.wbur.org>).

LOAN K. LE

Dr. Loan K. Le is President of the Institute for Good Government and Inclusion (IGGI), a domestic public policy think tank conducting research and education into four domains of interest: (1) the rule of law, (2) respect for persons, (3) transparency in government, and (4) democratic inclusion. She previously served as Director of Research at UC Berkeley's Center for Latino Policy Research and as Visiting Assistant Professor at UCLA in the Department of Political Science and in the Department of Asian American Studies. She is currently a member of the National Association for the Civilian Oversight of Law Enforcement (NACOLE) and serves on the editorial committee for the NACOLE Review. She also serves on the Western Political Science Association's Committee on the Status of Asian Pacific Americans in the Profession.

MARIELLE A. MOORE

Marielle Moore is a Policy Analyst with the Office of the Inspector General for the New York City Police Department. Prior to joining the Office of the Inspector General, Marielle was an organizing member of CopWatchDC and an Emerging Professional Fellow with the US-Russia Social Expertise Exchange, where she collaborated with Russian and American human rights activists and legal professionals to study citizen oversight of law enforcement. Marielle also served as a Law Clerk and Legal Assistant with the District of Columbia's Office of Police

Complaints, helping draft a policy recommendation relating to police use of body cameras.

Marielle holds a juris doctor from the University of Miami School of Law. At the University of Miami, she served as an Articles and Comments Editor of the International and Comparative Law Review and as a Student Fellow with the Children & Youth Law Clinic.

MAITRIA MOUA

Maitria Moua is currently finishing up her third year at the University of California, Los Angeles School of Law, specializing in Critical Race Studies. Upon graduation, Moua seeks to work closely with low-income communities of color. Moua received her undergraduate degree in Political Science and Asian American Studies at the University of California, Berkeley in 2013.